And He Was Ready to Buy Ice Cream Before Saying a Word About Marriage Sole Requisites: Youth, Height and Looks, but Barge Office Hadn't 'Em in German

Like young Lochinvar, George A. Wesler came out of the West. He came alone and he came for a bride, but he has gone back to the farm a bachelor. There didn't happen to be a German girl, 21 years old, tall willowy and with dark eyes, at the Barge Office. Wesler thought a wife of any description could be had there for the asking.

Wesler, who is 33 years old, came from Fremont, Ohio. He lives there on a farm with his folks. The folks don't know where he is. He told them that he was just going into the next county for a few days. That's why he was in such a hurry to get back and wouldn't devote more than one day to hunting for a bride among the immigrants.

He is as likely looking a young man as any immigrant girl could expect to get for a husband within half an hour after landing. He wore his store clothes, had on real kid gloves, a blue and white puff tie, brandboots with the squeak all in them, a pearl-colored derby and he had a flower fastened with a safety pin to the lapel of his greatcoat. He also had a wedding ring all ready for an emergency. It was partly engraved on the inside as follows:

With love-G. A. W. to ---

Of course he couldn't have the blank filled in till he got his bride and found out what her initials were.

"I just slicked up in my best togs," he said, smoothing down his well-oiled hair, "cause I thought like enough I might find a girl all ready to go right out and get spliced.

find a girl all ready to go right out and get spliced.

"I'm an American, but the folks are German, and I want a German wife right fresh from the old country. They told me I could get one here any time. I've got a good farm and nigh onto $20,000 in the bank, and if you've got a good, likely girl she needn't be afraid she'll ever need for victuals if she goes on along with me."

Wesler was referred to Miss Batchelder of the University Settlement, one of the young women inspectors. In all her settlement work Miss Batchelder had never struck anything like Wesler. She seemed to be shocked.

"Do you mean to say," she asked, "that you have come here to pick out a wife in cold blood in the same way you'd buy a—a—an automobile?"

"You ain't German yourself, be you?" asked Wesler.

"No, sir, I am not," replied Miss Batchelder.

"No, sir, I am not," replied Miss Batchelder.

"Well, no harm done, miss. I didn't know. I just thought I'd ask," said Wesler, readjusting his flower with one hand and smoothing his hair again with the other.

"Now, I allow there ain't much use for an automobile out our way. They ain't good fer milk wagons 'cause they shake so you'd have butter before you got half way to the village. I'd like to buy a nice steam plough, though." I meant," said Miss Batchelder, "that "I meant," said Miss Batchelder, "that it is very unusual for a man to go after a wife in the same way that he'd look for something inanimate like an automobile."

Oh, I see your p'int now, sure enough. You mean it's kind of sudden like to just up and marry on this here wharf without any sparking and seeing her home from meeting and things the like of that. Well, I suppose 'tis. But I'll tell you what I'll de just quick as a wink. If you know any ice cream place in these here parts I'll just stand treat and won't say a word till we eat the cream and then I'll sak her hitch up for better or worse while we're walking back to this wharf. Only it's so darn noisy with all these cars.

"You see, I'm in a hurry, 'cause the folks think I'm just in the next county, and I want to get home Saturday night and kind of surprise 'em all by walking in to supper, after all the chores are done, with a bride."

Miss Batchelder had no suggestions to make as to how Wesler should conduct a ten-minute courtship, so the farmer went over to Ellis Island "to look 'em over,' as the men inspectors said. He didn't find a girl to suit, so he came back and called at the German Society, 13 Broadway. He asked for a wife there, but was told that meant," said Miss Batchelder, "that at Quarantine. The steamer Syracuse, from Rio Janeiro, was detained at Quarantine yesterday for observation because two of her passengers had died on the voyage north. She left Rio with four passengers, Johan Boehm. died on March 28 and was buried at sea. Boehm died the next day. Both deaths were due to "fever," the captain says; of what kind he didn't know. The steamer put into Pahia, and Boehm's body was buried there. Mrs. Boehm and her sister-in-law continued their voyage to this port, arr.ving in good health.

Grocer's Bankruptcy Bluff Called. Petitions were filed in the United States District Court in Brooklyn yesterday to have Henry Kaempffer, a grocer, of 886 Graham avenue, adjudged an involuntary bankrupt, in that he committed an act of bankruptcy, as alleged, by giving a chattel mortgage on his store fixtures and that the goods were advertised to be sold under foreclosure within a short time. Judge Thomas appointed Shirley Shackle ford receiver of the property.

Robert Hunter and Miss Caroline Stokes. who are to be married in June, will not be far away after their marriage from the work in the University Settlement Society, which has interested them so much and led to their first meeting. Yesterday Mr. Hunter leased a house in Rivington street, and there they will live after their wedding.

ROSIE QUINN'S LIFE SENTENCE. Efforts to Save Girl Who Killed' Her Child

Not Yet Successful. Rosie Quinn, the seventeen-year-old girl who threw her illegitimate child into a Central Park lake last November and Central Park lake last November and was convicted of murder in the second degree, was sent to State Prison for life by Justice Scott in the Criminal branch of the Supreme Court yesterday.

So much sympathy was aroused by the girl that every effort was made to find some provision of the law by which she might be sent to some other place than State Prison or might get a new trial.

In imposing sentence Justice Scott said: "I have no desire to add to the disgrace under which you must be suffering, but I believe the jury returned a just verdict and the Court has no discretion. There are many persons interested in your behalf who will doubtless speak at the proper time."

Gov. Odell will probably be asked to pardon her.

BRADLEY GETS HIS $150,000. Plans for the New Boardwalk at Asbury Park-To Be Done June 1. ASBURY PARK, N. J., April 17 .- Founder Bradley came down to his old domain yesterday afternoon and received his check for $150,000. The beach commissioners hurried down to the boardwalk and held a brief confab with the late owner, after which they got together and settled on the plans for the new boardwalk. The com-missioners discovered that Mr. Bradley had taken all his tools away, but that is a small matter.

It was given out to-night that the new at was given out to-night that the new walk is to extend in a straight line from sixteen feet east of the present walk and the improvement this year will be as far as Fifth avenue. The pavilions, benches, bath-houses and sun pariors will receive a fresh coat of paint, but nothing else will be done to them, as they will aff be torn down next fall.

The beach commissioners promise that the new boardwalk will be completed by June 1.

CANAL COMMISSION'S VISIT. Members to Call on Governor of Panama To-day-Press Hostile to Treaty.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. COLON, Colombia, April 17.-The American Canal Commission will visit the Governor of Panama to-morrow. Admiral Walker, Gen. Haines and Prof. Burr willprobably return to the United States in a fortnight, but the other members of the commission will remain on the Isthmus.

Advices from Cartagena are to the effect that the entire press of the republic is opposed to the Canal treaty. Congress has not yet been called to consider the question.

The garrisons on the Isthmus are to be increased.

THE POST OFFICE SCANDALS. Charges Made Against the Mall Equipment Division.

WASHINGTON, April 17.-Charges were preferred to-day against a bureau of the Post Office Department not heretofore involved in the symposium of scandal and an investigation has been ordered. The charges concern the Mail Equipment Division which is one of the bureaus under Second Assistant Postmaster-General Shallenberger. They were filed by a special committee of the Central Labor Union, and severely criticise Mr. Shallenberger and accuse other officers of the division with favoritism, incompetency and misman-

Postmaster-General Payne talked more freely to-day, regarding conditions in the Department than at any time since his return. He said that if the investigational disclosed any evidence of a "one-man power" in the Department, as applied to the chiefs of any of the various bureaus, radical changes would be made, a system of "checks" instituted, and such a condition made invessible of recurrence.

In reply to a question as to whether any suspensions of officials under fire would be made during the course of the investiga-tion, Mr. Payne said that in the event of a recommendation to that effect by Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Bristow, who had charge of the inquiry, he would give the matter weighty consideration give the matter weighty consideration.
"But there has been no such suggestion or recommendation up to the present time," said Mr Payne, "and I know of none in contemplation."

ALDERMEN TOLD ABOUT DOGS.

THEY ALSO HEAR THAT HYDRO-PHOBIA IS A MYTH.

Dogs Should Not Be Muzzled, Because It Ruins Their Dispositions—And Man-hattan, if Not for Dogs, Isn't for Children - Health Board for Muzzles.

The dog and his muzzle were discussed in every phase at a public hearing given by the Law and Legislation Committee of the Board of Aldermen yesterday afternoon. The one missing factor was the dog owning soubrette. The speakers were mostly men and women past middle age. and physicians.

The proposed amendment to the ordiallows dogs to run at large when muzzled. The present ordinance requires that no dog shall be abroad except in leash, and that ordinance is little heeded. Mrs. Mary Jennings of 137 East 114th street, told the committee that muzzles ruined the dispositions of dogs. Some people, she said, argued that Manhattan (the ordinance applies only to Manhattan) was no place for dogs. Well, it was no place for children, either.

"Yet some very good children have been born here and have grown up here," said Alderman Armitage Matthews, who was presiding.
"And some very good dogs, too," said

Mrs. Jennings. Mrs. Sarah F. Norton of 17 Charles street, Mrs. Sarah F. Norton of 17 Charles street, Mis. Sarah F. Norton of T. Charles street, said that in her block there were half a dozen dogs and every time they were out on leashes at least a dozen boys had hold of the other end of the leader. "I'd rather have my dog muzzled than have him on a leader with a gang of boys choking him," a leader with a gang of boys choking him, said she.

Mrs. Jennings here volunteered the information that she had three sick cats at home which she had picked up on the street. Peter Ceder, a dog dealer, said there had been only one case of rables in New York. He said that men and boys stole dogs and tried to sell them in the streets and when they couldn't get money for them let them go. These hungry dogs were the cause of the scare. Mr. Ceder complained he had paid an assessment to the campaign committee which elected the present reform administration and it had done nothing to shut out the competition of dog thieves.

Dr. R. T. Harrison of 84 Cherry street said that if the city was to turn stray dogs over to the police it ought to muzzle the police first.

police first.

"This morning down in Wall Street three policemen emptied their revolvers into a little dog three months old, who was teething," said Dr. Harrison. "I have been bitten more than 1,000 times by dogs, and I haven't had hydrophobia. At the Boston Dog Show I was bitten thirty-two times in one day." He also asserted that dogs couldn't be broken to the muzzle.

Dr. R. W. Wilcox said he'd been trying for twenty-five years to find a case of hydrophobia. He didn't believe in its existence. "Let hydrophobia go with the other superstitions of the dark ages," said he.

Dr. Alexander Lambert took issue with him on the existence of hydrophobia. Dr. H. D. Gill of the State Department of Agri-culture said the department favored this ordinance as the only way to stamp out ordinance as the only way to stamp out rables.

Mrs. Jennings was heard again. She thought the hysteria about rables was worked up by doctors who wanted business. Others spoke on both sides of the question and the committee reserved its decision. It is believed that it will report in favor of the ordinance.

The Board of Health at its meeting yesterday passed a resolution indorsing the ordinance. Health Commissioner Lederle, Health Officer Doty and Deputy Police Commissioner Piper were present.

MASHING SERVANT GIRLS. Policeman Who Thought He Would Have a Lot of Fun-Broken.

Coles, another policeman, while patrolling Chester Hill, had been "mashing" servant girls, the Board of Police Commissioners ordered Chief of Police Foley to strip Coles of his badge. A resolution was also passed revoking all the powers conferred on Coles as an officer.

Vollmer was acquitted of the charge of having called on a servant girl of Thomas F. Fletcher, a New York dentist, at 3 o'clock in the morning, the main witness being

F. Fietcher, a New York dentist, at 3 o'clock in the morning, the main witness being Coles, as his testimony was impeached.

Acting City Judge Syme, as counsel for Vollmer, produced several maids who testified that Coles had often stopped in their kitchens while on duty to talk to them, and that he had been posing as a single man, whereas, according to his own confession, he has been married twice and has one wife living.

broken himself, although he was not under charges.

Three servant girls were on hand to testify that the policeman had made love to them. Another girl, to whom, it is said, the policeman gave a bicycle, was warned away. Some of the girls suspected that Coles was married. When they questioned him about it he produced his former wife's death certificate and showed it to them.

League to Prevent Injunctions.

The Anti-Injunction League was formally organized late on Thursday night at a meeting of 200 delegates, representing 175 labor unions, in the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum, 955 Willoughby avenue, Brooklyn. The object of the league is to agitate for the passage of laws restricting the enjoining power of Judges during strikes and other labor disputes.

INVADED BY HIGH ART And Fashion, Too-Great Doings at Glaenzer's Italian Garden.

Eleventh avenue children rarely have chance of two-stepping to the music of the Metropolitan band or the Tzigane orchestra. The fête which Eugene Glaenzer gave in his West Twenty-first street Italian garden for the benefit of the Orthopedic Hospital offered that opportunity yesterday afternoon and a pair of diminutive girls snatched at it, much to the edification of the fur-capped coach nen, the grimy idlers at the blacksmith's shop across the way and the ten cops whom the authorities had stationed in front of the garden, for the apparent purpose of keeping Mr. Glaen-zer's long-shore neighbors from stealing

What inspired the art-dealing fête-giver to locate his salesrooms in just that part of Manhattan seemed a source of wonder, both to those who had bought the $5 admissions and drove up in landaus and to those who hung out of the four-story tenements and audibly criticised the liveries and attitudes of the scachmen. "No meeting at any of my fountains," was the way he put it.

Yesterday's fête was as near as he cared to go to advertising. It was the formal opening of his statuary rooms, and he had placed them entirely at the disposal of the patronesses of the Orthopedic Hospital for the occasion. Miss Doane, representing the patronesses, said that the affair would net the institution from $2,000 to $3,000.
